Matters on the coast have been quiet for some NEW YORK, November 19 -The following days past, the enemy being satisfied, from the warm reception given him near Darien, that he cannot land and remain at any point, for any length of time, with impunity. Their forces are very small, so small that they are midneed to the This morning the second army corps, General necessity of organizing negro companies and lograding their warfare to mere plundering and Summer, moved to the front. They are probably destined for Fredericksburg, but may go to maranding expeditions. So long as they have Culpeper Court House first, or at least near that gunbosts and barges and we have none, this state of things must continue, and the only remedy is for our people to move away from the immediate coast and near the months of the Colonel Ingalls, chief quartermaster, has gone rivers. The enemy can land somewhere, in spite of any force we may be able to organize against him. We have six cavalry companies stationed on the coast between here and S Mary's, and three more will be placed in the field in the course of a few days. With them, if on people will only exercise the good sense to keep without the enemy's lines, nothing need b feared. General Mercar has long been trying t effect this, but some would stay in spite of his epeated requests and to their own hurt. Infantry for the coast, and especially raw and ndisciplined troops, are of but little, if any value. The enemy move in steamers, pound down when nobody is expecting them, and as an engagement between our rear column and pickets cannot be stationed in sight of each other along the whole line, our force, to be effect tive, must be mounted so as to move rapidly from point to point.
